

Checklist of Sherlock Holmes (and Holmes related) Films and Television Programs

Sherlock Holmes has been a popular character from the earliest days of motion pictures. Writers and producers realized that use of a deerstalker and magnifying lens was an easily recognized indication of a detective character. This has led to many presentations of a comedic detective with Sherlockian mannerisms or props. Many writers have also had an established character in a series use Holmes's icons (the deerstalker and lens) in order to convey the fact that they are acting like a detective.

The listing has been split into subcategories to indicate the various cinema and television presentations of Holmes either in straightforward stories or pastiches; as portrayals of someone with Holmes-like characteristics; or as parody or comedic depictions. Almost all of the animation presentations are parodies or of characters with Holmes-like mannerisms and so that section has not been split into different subcategories. For further information see "Notes" at the end of the list.

Some films or shows released in one country under one name had another name assigned to them, with a Sherlockian connection, in another country. These are technically not Sherlockian films because the connection is strictly in the alternative title, but are listed here for completeness.

Notes

Listings are placed in chronological order, although separated in the various categories. Some allowance are made for keeping grouped items together.

An * in the date column indicates that there is no known surviving print or copy of this film or episode. This indication is not complete for all entries.

For movies originally produced in a language other than English, details are given for the original language, the English translation of the title and the English/American release title where appropriate. A movie or animation may have been dubbed into other languages, but that information is not provided here.

The listing includes straightforward portrayals of Sherlock Holmes as well as derivatives or parodies of Holmes or Watson. The derivative portrayals include such shows with the grandson of Holmes (John Cleese as Arthur), his grand-niece (Meredith Henderson as Shirley), or cartoons with a strong Sherlock Holmes theme. Many of the early silent films or more recent cartoons listed have little to do with Sherlock Holmes beyond the title, the fact that they involve a detective parodying the Holmes character, or a regular character in a Sherlockian outfit.

This list does not cover commercials, newsreels, documentaries, pseudodocumentaries, training films or original productions made for YouTube. This list also does not include quiz or game shows that deal with Sherlock Holmes as a subject matter. Exceptions may be found.

While this list does include appearances of characters in Sherlockian outfits, however brief, it does not include references to Sherlock Holmes or his methods. Examples of these situations would be Data using Holmes's methods (without the outfit) in Star Trek: The Next Generation (the episode 'Lonely Among Us'), references to Holmes and Doyle in X-Files ('Fire') or Gregory House's apartment number 221B and Wilson's gift of Joseph Bell's book in the series House.

Dates are in the USA format of month day, year.
